

In 2004, Michael, Trevor and Brad robbed a bank in Ludendorff, north Yankton. While Michael and Brad were harassing the bank workers with guns, Trevor quickly put the sticky bombs on the safe. Trevor went back to Michael and Brad to set off the sticky bombs, and then they ran to get the money from the safe to put in their bags. They went out the back door but it was locked, so they used the sticky bombs to blow up the back door. Once the back door was blown up, and they saw five cops surrounding them, Trevor said, 'Take cover!' All three of them started shooting the cops. Trevor threw a sticky bomb on one of the cops' cars and also blew up the other cars because the police cars were so close together. Michael, Trevor and Brad all ran quickly to a car that Michael spotted.

They broke all the windows and then they hot-wired the car, but somehow the police found them. The car finally started. They put the pedal to the metal. They realised that the cops called for back up because about two minutes later, eight other cops started chasing them. They found a path to escape which was across a train track, although they saw a speeding train going past. They were going 150 KM PER HOUR. They were going over the train track and it hit them, but only the back of the car was hit. Then they got out of the car, but suddenly, the car blew up, but some of the cops made it past.

A cop shot Brad accidentally. Then Michael and Trevor quickly ran off without Brad, because they knew that if they would try to get Brad, they would get caught by the cops and they would be in jail for 5 years. Michael and Trevor called Lester to figure out a way to take them off the cops' radar because Lester was a hacker. Lester called a person to pick up Michael and Trevor to drive them away from the police within 15 minutes. Although Trevor was worried about Brad because that was his best friend. Although Michael said he would be okay.
